Around Town !!!

Katie (Arends '92) Driscoll is trying to change the advertising world. After graduating from Southern IL University with a degree in social work, she moved to Chicago and worked as a social worker until she met her husband Tom in 1998. Katie was a stay-at-home mom with 5 boys with a daughter, Grace, being born 4 years ago. Grace is a Downs syndrome baby. "I wanted people to be happy for me and our family." She did this by posting photos of Grace on a blog. Katie fell in love with photography and with friend Steve English, started 'Changing the Face of Beauty' 2 years ago. The campaign encourages advertizers to incorporate photos of children and adults of all abilities into their campaign. Recently, 'The Today Show' featured a segment on Katie's work and a live interview with Katie and Grace. We wish Katie and her family....and her photography campaign the best of luck in the future !

Georgiana Johnson will be celebrating her 90th birthday at a public reception on Sept 14th at the 1st Presbyterian Church in Gibson. Hosted by her daughters Sharon '74 Pearson and Mary '79 Davis. Georgiana requests no gifts, but asks that guests bring donations of non-perishable food (or cash donations) which will be given to the local food pantry.

In late August, Gibson City hosted 23 visitors from China who hoped to learn from Gibson's success of having a strong local economy. Program Coordinator, Rob Marinelli said the U of I chose to bring the group to Gibson because Gibson has a variety of development. "It has a lot of vibrancy and diversity....it's a unique small town".
